Lee Cagle has been a versatile performer and teacher at local and regional events throughout the Southeast since 1988. A multi-instrumentalist, singer and storyteller, Lee presents a variety of music, from folk to meditative, from Celtic to American traditional, using mountain dulcimer, autoharp, bowed psaltery, and ukelele. Programs available include introductory lessons on mountain dulcimer for groups of up to nine. In addition, Lee is a recording artist, the author of several books and instructional materials on playing traditional music, particularly on the mountain dulcimer, and is the director of the Memphis Dulcimer & Folk Gathering. She is available for festivals, private parties, public events, school programs and church services.
